

Reflections on Global Warming

The Sixth Russian Babushka Egg

God's plan for humanity, the coming Apocalypse and a new perspective on global warming

By
Herbert R Stollorz

God's Plan for Humanity

One day survivors of the Apocalypse population will look back and wonder how the previous generation could have missed Jesus warning, "Watch!" Modern consumers are too wrapped up in high-technology gadgets and other entertaining diversions to connect the dots of what is going on in our world today.

While the Genetically Modified and cloned food issues capture news headlines along with repeated expert discussions on global warming, the public continues its habitual thought patterns of too busy to worry about world affairs. Despite the availability of instant news on TVs and access to unlimited knowledge on the Internet, most will not wake up to the seriousness of the hour until it is too late.

I believe the reason for modern societies' cluelessness comes from an education system that leaves its graduates totally ignorant of a human being's inner spiritual life. How is it that thousands of colleges and universities graduate millions who are so uninformed of the spirit dimension?

Why has our enlightened society come to close to completely destroying our environment when ecological science is over 50 years old? Because modern civilization has been more completely blinded by greed and self indulgence than any other in the history of humanity - except perhaps the age of Atlantis, known in the Bible as the years before the Flood of Noah.

Governments have not paid serious attention to the warnings of apocalyptic scientific prophecy. Popular mass media ignore the true significance of the massive insect extinctions, bees dying, animals and fish disappearing or ice melting on a global scale. Are these changes due to natural causes, or brought on by an angry God in response to human mismanagement?

In this my last babushka book, I examine and reflect upon the hot button issue of climate change from a dual rail perspective of science and the Bible, which is more balanced than what is found in most, if not all, universities. It may be an impossible task to explain the causes and implications of global warming to scientists deluded by an evolution theory religion enforced in most universities. Educated in unscientific assumptions is like being trapped in a closed circle where one hypothesis no longer can be logically reasoned to the next layer of hypothesis development. That leads to the entrenched closed mindedness of an atheistic bias that would prefer to flout the many laws of physics than entertain the possibility of divine existence and intervention in human affairs; therefore, they will never postulate a good scientific scenario that explains what is happening now in nature around the world.

I have watched many scientists express wild opinions on TV programs that lack any common sense reality when it comes to climate change. A biased billion year theory perspective of our earth prevents them from looking at facts recorded in human history.

We can read about climate change in ancient books of many civilizations. Archaeology has especially proven the accuracy of the 4,000-year Bible as antiquity's most dependable historic record. Learning about events recorded by ancient eyewitnesses can aid us in researching and developing a new, more balanced perspective on global warming. We can begin to understand better why the weather is changing in our time, which might also give us enough data for a better climate model. Why waste a lot of dollars in wild speculation based on assumption built on top of assumption?

Discussions of global warming issues should not be avoided or stifled by the establishment just because they are associated with the Bible. I invite my fellow scientists to get a little educated in the true picture of what is happening on our globe from both a scientific and from a spiritual perspectives using my dual rail approach not found in Christian universities or seminaries either. Many biological events recorded in ancient times can be cross-referenced to present scientific observations that are, hopefully, not based on fairytales that lead us to bad science, dead-end conclusions.

Any other approach will keep us from ever fully understanding why and how the climate changes now so prevalent came about. Our first agenda should be solving the mysteries why polar ice is melting so quickly as to project hugely detrimental consequences to our coastal populations. A good grasp of the facts could give us the political willpower to change our lifestyles to include the wisdom from the Bible if we want to live on this earth a little longer. Global warming is about the future and is fore planned to happen. Bible prophecy is a hot button affecting people everywhere, so bear with me as I discuss climate change from a prophetic perspective derived from verses in the Bible. You will not hear or read about my analysis in the mass media forums, nor will it be allowed by the evolution religion high priests in charge of our biased education system.

To discover anything about science mysteries, one should examine the questions from a dual-rail perspective for a better balance. That means we should first know something about of our earth from the spiritual as well as from the scientific perspective. My approach first mentions that the earth is the only place in universe where life exists. This conclusion is based upon the thousands of "coincidental" variables met by the earth's situation in space that must be precisely calibrated in order to maintain its existence. Logic teaches me that for all of these variables to fit together, there must also exist an intelligent purpose.

To understand earthly climate changes, we should first clear our minds of existing biases and ask why we live on this tiny speck in the universe. We must seek to define it from the perspective of purpose. The intelligent human species does not exist by chance. Investigating deeper into life's mystery, we can define scientifically what "is," but science needs spiritual input to define the inner dimension of what "will be." Both characterize our world if you want to have a balanced perspective in life.

Reflections on Global Warming

Therefore, my story focuses first on what cannot be changed: the spiritual manifestation as a basis for our assumption as modified by environmental forces, which can change. So when scientists are biased from mis-education, the first step to better understanding climate change is to correct the wrong assumptions. It is like a traveler coming from space who sees the earth for the first time. Then there is the added information that humanity is now caught up in a prophecy cycle thousands of years old that is leading to the birth of a new civilization even while we watch the present civilization disappear due a series of asteroid strikes prophesied in the Bible and already identified by scientists as being in orbit on a probable earth impact trajectory.

Most educated people are confused because they are not familiar with this method of research, so they reject information from both science and the Bible in ignorance. Climate changes relate to our well being and therefore learn who are we on this earth, where do we go and why will it end. The Hebrew Alphabet Number System (HANS) teaches us that a letter "W" means Waw-connect. My story conforms to the Hebrew math hand rule: four fingers (like four W's) relate to one thumb in order to solve a mystery by the equation of $4+1 = 5$. It is that simple.

By focusing first on the inner spiritual life, we learn to express invisible realities based on the spiritual revelation of purpose, which creates some value. Looked at from the scientific viewpoint, spiritual truth is usually treated like a commodity that is only useful when a person is deep in trouble with no other option. Religious churchianity has a problem with this approach because monorail theologians are also educated in a secular school system biased towards the evolutionary perspective.

The existence of so many denominations in the phonebook's yellow pages only confirms the existence of much religious confusion concerning, and misunderstanding of, the Bible. A dual-rail perspective would help theologians, too. Their monorail biases have prevented them from discerning important aspects of God's plan for humankind. Removing this theological confusion would go a long way towards removing the stumbling blocks found in the minds and attitudes of most atheistic scientists so that they would be more open to the truths found in the Bible.

Monorail theologians dropped the ball historically. Most universities were started by a Christian denomination. As they prospered over the years, these universities evolved into huge institutions mostly controlled by an atheistic priesthood of PhDs who forbid anything concerning a biblical spirituality. The Bible is translated into hundreds of languages. It is a best seller, yet you will not find it on most university or school library shelves - along with many other religious master pieces of literature. This educational trend has given rise to a one sided education that produces a society smart in computers but dedicated to follow a self-destructive path. Without a biblical compass or the open-minded observation of the environment, they are lost and too proud to read an old man's science and the Bible Babushka books of warnings like Genetic Modification Exposed!

Climate changes raise more questions about a coming Apocalypse mentioned in the Bible. When it comes, everyone will be able to see the early events of this great prophecy come alive on TV. It will take spiritual discernment to understand how those events relate to real life. The abundance of biblically illiterate opinions vented by religious and political leaders makes it difficult to delineate truth from fiction and encourages the degeneration of science to evolutionary fairytales; therefore, the answers to these important questions will only be found outside the controlled classroom.

I could not find many books to help me discover the Bible from a scientific perspective. As an inventor in advanced high-technology, I looked for a bridge between the two, and I stumbled upon a mathematical matrix in the Hebrew Alphabet Number System (HANS) that also applied to science.

HANS opened further Bible mysteries like an invisible tutor directing me to spiritual analogies discovered in scientific context. I previously was not even familiar with them, like true facts about global warming¹. Taking the Bible perspective and cross-referencing verses with true science made logical sense. I was convicted to go deeper into my research collecting many facts and began to write them down because at my advanced age my brain too often forgets stuff.

First, I thought that authoring a book was worth the endeavor as it would benefit others on the journey. I didn't mind spending my retirement money, but lately I have come to realize that spiritual insight cannot be bought with a book. It is a gift from God for those who are seriously searching. That changed my perceptions, which now seem to have come full circle, but perhaps too late, as much time and money was spent writing for others when it was really meant only for me.

Why did God take so long to get through my own inner makeup? I wished I would have discovered this truth a little earlier while I was young and full of energy. My life railroad would have in another direction. Perhaps I could have become famous in the history books.

However, allow me to sum up what I learned so late in life. I write it for my associate scientists who suffer through some unfamiliar territory not taught in the establishment universities. I am sure the last Babushka book, which connects the 7th Waw Hebrew letter on the Internet, will put us on the spiritual discovery trail. It is a good idea to get started with the familiar Gospels to first learn about the historic Jesus as He is the nucleus of the Bible. Along our journey of Bible education - like a dual rail connected with science and climate changes, one must watch out for counterfeit sentiments.

¹ My ideas about global warming developed while writing several books that are re-assembled from various pages to save time for those who seriously looking to find the reason why the ice on the polar region is now melting. My viewpoint is not even on Al Gore's table for obvious bias to dodge any science linked to the Bible.

Reflections on Global Warming

Spiritual journeys encounter spiritual obstacles and diversions that can sidetrack the pilgrim. Some church services focus on a lot of emotional expression. Such behavior is mostly faking a spiritual encounter through which the pastor psychologically massages the crowd to get some money. God's Spirit works on the inside like a quite whisper similar to a life force embedded in a tiny mustard seed. The Holy Spirit does not need an outward demonstration with shouts like, "You've got the spirit!" or other kinds of noisy "miracles."

Using a scientific methodology to apply logic can be helpful for theologians in delineating false doctrines taught in some churches. If we crosscheck it and overlay it with an ancient Hebrew code from another witness perspective. I was fortunate to discover the Hebrew Alphabet Number System (HANS), which expresses life from a Heh-Daleth dual-rail worldview perspective, which must be very rational for me, as an inventor, to get excited. In truth, it expanded my horizons for a better understanding of the spiritual Heh dimension.

Unfortunately, my professional contemporaries have been brainwashed to reject the Bible while denying the obvious. They will miss seeing the world from a 360° movie perspective because they were educated in a university that gives only a narrow movie screen experience invented over 100 years ago. Discovering that the major events and cycles of Bible prophecy matched like precise clock gears got me wound-up as it resonated with my inventor's technical mindset. It is driving me further to search deeper in the infinite bottomless Bible Ocean as I dive for the pleasure of discovering more precious pearls.

Why Climate Change is Difficult for Scientists

As mentioned above, I have noticed that denying the existence of the Creator is the greatest obstacle for a scientist to overcome in order to understand the Bible. Rejecting the Creator closes all the doors of common sense, which leads to a lifestyle of ignorance devoid of the wisdom to delineate fact from fiction.

Physical laws like cause-effect will then be activated that cut the unbeliever off from spiritual life. Rejection of the Creator leads one to join others possessing a similar point of view. Such persons are being judged and condemned because they have freely chosen spiritual darkness instead of light. The Bible teaches that unredeemed humans travel the last railroad station designed for unteachable mortals, who will be disposed of like rusty railroad junk - obsolete equipment deposited in the Hell void of divine life, termed "outer darkness" by Jesus. It is a terribly lonely place.

If you look through a Hubble telescope, you will see a vastness void of all life we are familiar with. Not even having one fly for company in total darkness gives one time to think about the Creator and appreciate that He came to earth, became like us, got beat up and allowed Himself to be crucified. All of this took place to tell me I am worth the pain He suffered to be loved.

The Book of Books teaches that the visible nature of God is light, and the absence of light is therefore darkness. Researchers educated in a monorail, atheistic system start their careers on a foundation of lies, and one lie leads to another. Like a domino effect, accepting one lie leads to being sucked into believing many satanic lies. That road away from light guarantees a predictable ending like a condemned blindfolded prisoner led away by demons on the last journey, now too shocked to realize how he was misled by a clever deception from the atheistic priesthood.

He now travels the final road to face his prophesied ultimate destination, the "White Throne Judgment" now dated by ancient clocks. There he will experience eternal death, which some will desire as the last choice of rebellious people who would still deny the Creator-Savior still willing to forgive but forced by man's rebellion to judge.

Living on this earth with cause and effect laws cannot be avoided as our world is operated by laws of nature; therefore, it is logically impossible to be forgiven by a "un-person" who does not exist to pardon. If God does not reside in our mindset, how can He forgive a death sentence? What other choice is left to communicate his existence to one who refuses to believe in Him?

Therefore, it is not scientifically possible for a spiritually dead person to recognize the reality of God's Spirit. Accordingly, one can only become aware of God's divine presence by investigating intelligent design embedded in physics. If you are educated to analyze nature, even researching nature is clouded in unscientific evolution fairytales. It is a stupid theory totally contrary to the established laws of entropy anchored in proven physics.

Today's university priesthood are just as controlled by Satan as they were in Galileo's life. It is cleverly camouflaged how God was replaced with unproven, obsolete assumptions of evolutionary wishful thinking, which makes science into cult religion. That kind of belief makes one intellectually comatose to the spiritual side of man because wisdom is completely denied.

An atheistic PhD degree signifies a small section of knowledge music repeated over and over again like a record needle stuck in one groove. It is also like a dog chasing his own tail that no longer has any awareness of its real surroundings. Modern education is trapped within a closed system. Only extra terrestrially revealed information or an act of God's grace can break the cycle of the stuck groove long enough to hear the rest of the music. I hope for liberated people who will no longer be stuck in darkness, now seeing the light turned on.

A New Concept of Global Warming

Before I give my reflections on Global Warming, I want to comment on an article in Discovery Magazine². In this article various scientists use fictitious time estimates from radioisotopes that alternately give dates ranging from a billion to hundred thousand years in one breath. Thinking readers should give thought about this since science has learned that Carbon-14 dating cannot consistently measure anything since the 1948 Pacific nuclear tests. That line of thinking will never come to an agreement on global warming. Starting with wrong assumptions can never lead to sound conclusions. Two camps seem to be better financed: one tells time by uranium, and the other uses potassium isotopes.

² The Earth Project, by Erika Check Hayden, Discovery Magazine, December 2007, page 52.

Reflections on Global Warming

Most scientists educated in an evolutionary fairytale religion don't realize that they are duped by a prevailing atheistic priesthood that controls all schools and universities. Open debate is not allowed; therefore, any discussion not approved by their brand of science is avoided as either speculation or religion. Evolution theories, like any theory, must be based on physical laws, but it has instead become a cult religion enforced by lawyers and police force.

Check out thousands of drawers in museums containing fossil bones of extinct animals and show me one trans-specie skeleton overturning the First Law of Thermodynamics. Embedded intelligence of any DNA in a simple cell is so massive and complex that it can never reproduce with over 100% energy conversion. That means your laptop computer intelligence will never replace the big blue IBM computer in a million times over a million years beyond any date supposedly measurable by potassium isotopes or uranium.

Not being educated in atheistic institution allowed me to become an originator. I made a lot of money inventing hi-tech gadgets like your miniaturized disc drive in your laptop computer. Having been among those who started Silicon Valley as center for hi-tech, I made my employers extremely wealthy. My inventions helped to exponentially spawn hundreds of other companies. Prior to my days in Silicon Valley, I was an engineer and German instrument maker. Eventually I owned my own Silicon Valley Company for 20 years, which should qualify me to have a voice and express an opinion.

In my golden age, I learned to see nature in a 360° theater in the round, which gives you a 180 degree perspective two times - like the two rails of a railroad track are used for better balance. I recognized that two rails are found in nature, but natural science is mostly investigated only from a one-sided monorail scientist or monorail theologian perspective. Both viewpoints should be considered if you want to understand our world and environment from a 360° perspective.

Modern man is ignorant of a bestseller - a 4,000-year old classic literature book, the Bible. This book accurately records human history, but it has been thrown out of our schools - just like Hitler did in Germany. It is no wonder that our new generation became monorail educated children forced to believe in fairytale stories like the DNA of a frog genome kissed by a university maiden could evolve into a higher plateau of intelligence expressed by an evolved monkey painted only on museums walls no longer based on real science.

For those still able to think logically, let's read science magazines, which are still allowed being printed outside of the university establishment. Notice in one article an attempt is made to measure time from a monorail perspective that result in unbalanced conclusions typical of suppositions not compliant to physics. Any theory based on unproven assumptions will eventually collapse like a house of cards - one conjecture based on another.

A recent scientific discovery throws another monkey wrench into the cogs of this unproven theory of evolution: the speed of light is not constant. Atheistic religion strongly objects to this. You've got to be crazy to even suggest that light is slowing down. Because hundreds of astrophysicists postulate that the universe is accelerating and expanding, most assume that they cannot all be wrong. If the speed of light was indeed constant, then an increasing red shift in the light from a star would prove the universe is accelerating in its expansion. This is a proven fact of science on earth.

However, recent discoveries could be tossing out the cherished red shift theory upon which the Big Bang has been based upon for a hundred years. If substantiated, it would throw out hundreds of theories based on a card house built out of one supposition upon another - including those of evolution that supposedly account for how our vast universe full of law-obeying matter and energy came out of nothing without any prior intelligent planning and design. Without them reason has no choice but to choose an omnipotent, wise and probably benevolent Creator.

Besides the arena of physics, university intellectuals are busy trying to hush up the obvious witness against evolution provided by the Human Genome Project. Human DNA is incredibly complex. Evolutionary chance cannot begin to account for its embedded intelligence and operational technology.

There is no consistency in accepting Albert Einstein's proofs that light bends and must slow down to go around gravitational fields and rejecting a Creator, who "does not play at dice." The university experts are probably only confused by the huge salaries they would lose should they speak out. They fear a modern day the Inquisition like during Galileo's life more than to speak openly about the logical conclusions from these latest discoveries. The unbiased mind can see plainly that the universe is finite and designed by a great Designer - God. My work has added another dimension of proof with what I have deciphered from these many ancient calendars and clocks that match our NASA calendar to an exact day.

If evolution blinded researchers cannot be convinced by these huge witnesses, then I do not expect my research results on some ancient bronze gold clocks and calendars found in museums will convince them either, but to me their witness from the smart humans living thousands of years ago who made them is astounding.

Reflections on Global Warming

Evolution theory keeps changing with the weather to eliminate the need for a Creator. Now invisible dark energy is a popular theory. It is supposed to exist between galaxies of empty space, but the physicists who apply the facts of slowing light speed also say that it eliminates the mathematical need for dark energy.

We have now a choice: either believe in dark energy or in Jesus who said, "I am Light." Both use religious talk about invisible energy from space and are undetectable to us, which cannot be proven with a monorail technology as both are coming from the other side (Heh), the metaphysical dimension of the universe. It is ominous that Lucifer, formally light-bearer, changed into a dark force. The atheistic brotherhood scientists cling to dark energy in a seeming anticipation of a coming Apocalypse when Satan will be thrown to earth to be spiritually chained in an energy-less abyss. Once there he will no longer play any games with the minds of scientists.

The fact that the seven rainbow color bands reflect both in the retina of the human eye and will also change time will in time throw the cherished evolution theory out from the university when the atheistic priesthood of rebellious intellectuals is replaced by the new government to come.

Read this quote from Discovery Magazine, December 2007, page 52:

...These cycles occur because Earth's orbit and orientation to the sun shift, slowly but steadily, causing recurring changes in sunlight and climate pattern. Yet rarely does anyone check whether dates derived from these different techniques agree. It's as if every scientist is reading from his or her own watch, but nobody's watch is synchronized with anyone else's.

Creating one super accurate chronology of the Earth's past could create hopes to eliminate such problems by giving everyone the same starting point.

Our goal is to produce a better timescale so we can go out and start asking a whole new set of questions."

There is a new understanding of climate changes from a dual-rail perspective in which time can be calibrated to a corrected Gregorian calendar. There are many mysterious bronze-gold clocks exhibited in museums around the world. Some are even made from stone like the Aztec calendar clock in Mexico City outdoor museum. These ancient clocks are now deciphered after hundred years of failed scientific investigation. With this new start on a more accurate chronology; earth history can be more easily explored by every true scientist not controlled by an atheistic university priesthood of scholars.

Time should be understood from a parabolic perspective that Einstein mentioned. This new chronological system merges a BC/AD window to explain a recent earth wobble caused by an asteroid 5 February 2287 playing back the planetarium sky. They match ancient cultures' three dial mystery clocks, including the famous Greek bronze Antikythera calculator with 32 gears found in dated at about 100 BC. The Bible was written by 40 professional scribes who recorded for us what happened in history much older than we appreciate. Check it out in my seven scaled presentations like nested Russian Babushka dolls. These books give a two-rail perspective forgotten in the halls of education and many churches.

Mapping the human genome according to unscientific monorail theories will never decipher where life came from. The situation is just like the mystery clocks found in museums around the world. For hundred of years they just collect dust and still cannot be deciphered using fairytale science. Babushka Book #3, Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries, may answer some of your new questions.

Now we come to the rail explaining global climate changes. It is time to check science from the new perspective of biblical history. Former Vice President Al Gore received a Noble prize by championing global warming using controversial scientific speculation based on evolution theories that deny the natural laws of entropy. Global warming can never be understood by ignorant contenders brainwashed in unscientific fairytales. It is like believing that a thousand laptop computers somehow connected to each other would evolve over a billion years to replace the big blue IBM mainframe computers used to manage all commerce and banking in the world.

That notion denigrates science to an atheistic religion, which is politically enforced by lawyers from the establishment. They have persuaded uneducated senators to make laws to teach our children that a worm given billion of years can change into monkey. Lacking the evidence in archeology and fossilized records and believing that physics can be violated will never explain global warming. As a scientist who understands how software works well enough to invent a functional storage device, I can tell you that I have not seen one incidence in my life where nature can be violated contrary to established laws.

My unpopular statement may result in a new inquisition to prevent scientific discussion of climate changes from a perspective of history books, including the Bible. History and science together must be used to search for the causes of global warming, perhaps recorded thousand of years ago. Climate changes do not happen overnight unless our sun exploded in magnitude higher than recorded in history.

The answers may therefore be found in the oldest book, the Bible. It is not irrelevant to modern society. I remember Bibles being burned on a pile sanctioned by Hitler and Stalin's dictatorships. I witnessed these burnings as a teenager while going to school, which also enforced the teaching of evolution theories. Both regimes jailed Christians for not conforming to their wishes and program of lies. I am sorry to see that America follows that same pattern and has abandoned its Constitution, which keeps the government's power at bay. Politicians should not interfere with education.

To enforce an atheistic state religion of unscientific evolution theories for every school and university campus is not based on a historic Christian-Judeo perception. Rather it comes from an ancient Babylon cult religion like the dictators did in Europe. The result is always a degenerate society. I personally experienced the consequences of atheism. Ignoring Biblical principles lead to ethnic cleansing of millions, unending wars, bankrupt societies and tremendous human suffering.

The Bible prophesies that it will all end in total destruction. European history is therefore now repeated in America, which at one time it was governed by Christian principles with God-fearing churches on every corner. Now most churches are empty, and its citizens are deep in debt caused by the many wars.

That said, let's take a more objective look at global warming and discover the real reasons behind it. Then, you can decide for yourself whether or not my ideas or the establishment's has more merit. I will not re-write again what was dispersed throughout my other books about climate change. I will reference pages of a book that provide more background and discussion.

The Real Reason for Climate Change

To sum it up from my previous Babushka books, the Bible records events from a pre-Atlantis civilization age that had an environment very different from what we are familiar with today. It was not million years ago, but much more recent - before 2287 BC according to the Aztec-Hebrew-Chinese chronologies.

The evidence is overwhelming. You can read more about it in my Babushka books. The Aztec-Mayan clock calendar reveals an unusual spin axis of our earth, which resulted in the tropical climate from the North to the South Pole described in Genesis for the years before 2288 BC. If one is not blinded by theorized long ages for the geological records, then we can make scientific links between ancient eyewitness reports built into the structure of ancient clocks and calendar systems found in archaeological sites from around the world.

The pre-Flood, Atlantis age scenario of a warm tropical climate with a higher oxygen content and higher atmospheric pressure combine to plausibly explain why we find large cell structures in fossilized bones and plants embedded in coal deposits or muck. Insects preserved in amber also have internal structures designed for atmospheric conditions different from what it is like today.

Prehistoric events recorded in Genesis agree pretty well with our geological records. If evolutionary biased mindset is set aside even temporarily, it is possible to see the obvious. Climate investigation from this perspective of looking at fossilized cell structures expose an oxygen content with a higher pressurized atmosphere as proven in amber or Bernstein. Embedded bubbles of air with twice the enriched oxygen as measured today are found in ancient tree resin.

This extra oxygen combined together with the hydrogen left over from the previous formation of the ocean in the upper regions of our earth atmosphere to become the motor that drove a climate ecosystem vastly different from what can be measured today with spectral instruments. You can read more about the evidence in my other Babushka books. For example, bones found in Alaska and Siberian tundra close to the North Pole showed an original tropical climate of our earth.

As oxygen was prolifically reproduced by prehistoric tropical forests and made it possible for larger animals to live like the dinosaurs. Since creation in 4488 BC (according to the Aztec calendar as calibrated to our Gregorian calendar), a very fast rate of plant growth can be estimated scientifically by analyzing oil deposits or measuring narrow coal deposit layers in our American neighborhoods as seen on TV. A stratum of seam deposit 30 feet high (my estimation) and miles long is exposed by a surface coal mine seen on TV program about pollution believed to cause global warming.

Common sense reveals that billions of geological years are not needed to accumulate only 30 feet of plants compressed into a relative small seam of coal. This fact in the ground indicates a very short time geologically compared to what is printed in school books. Genesis reported a deluge of immense global proportions that is recorded in almost every ancient culture on earth. This Flood put plants under immense pressure and compacted animal proteins heated up without oxygen under shifting tectonic plates similar how we produce charcoal under an earthen mound.

Genesis and the Aztec temple wall murals in Mexico City clearly identify the cause of this Flood as being an asteroid from space. The asteroid strike triggered a chain reaction of the superabundant oxygen with the hydrogen leftover from the previous formation of the oceans to produce the 40 days of rain reported by Moses in Genesis. That extra water came from an atmospheric collapse to our present 1 atm at ocean level. The water was deposited miles deep on the Polar Regions, which pushed tectonic plates and dislocated continents through a process also affected by the wobble of the earth's rotation that also resulted from the asteroid strike.

Through physics, we can build laboratory models to recreate what happened. Some of these models can be seen on cable channel shows about nature. They just need to leave out that irrational, unscientific evolution religion so that it would be easier to explain the mystery of why an oxygen enriched atmosphere combined with left over Hydrogen - ignited by the spark of an asteroid intrusion from space to explosively unlock Noah's massive rains. That fiery asteroid shook the earth violently and collapsed the ancient atmosphere on 5 February 2287 BC according to the mathematical play back of the planetary sky reported in my books.

These prehistoric events not only changed the face of the planet but also how it rotated on its axis, which can be proven from ancient archaeological monuments and historical records like the 4,000-year old Bible. The Aztecs built pyramid on top of pyramid in Mexico City to try to keep up with the earth wobble changes. Sun worship became popular around the world because it looked like the sun behaved erratically. Ancient craftsmen manufactured very expensive gold-bronze, multi-faced, multi-gear clocks still exhibited in museums around the world. Evolution does not provide any framework to decipher these ancient calendar systems and clocks, but my hypothesis does so with remarkable cross-cultural confirmation. Read about it in Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries.

Reflections on Global Warming

The earth wobble from this tectonic rearrangement took some time to quiet down. As it did so, there were accompanying climate changes as seen geologically in the glaciers around the globe and as recorded in historic descriptions of ancient living conditions or by paleoclimatological research. The glaciers still provide evidence of recent glaciations with snow miles deep at the Polar Regions we can measure. Noah's worldwide deluge is verified by archeology when searching for the cradle of civilization or the remains from earliest cities and villages, which are found along a narrow ice and snow free corridor of 30 degrees parallel from the Tropical Cancer or Capricorn reaching toward the equator.

Why do researchers only find these most ancient artifacts in such a narrow corridor and not in the more northern regions? The Bible gives us the answer: snow deposited by the earth's axis wobble reached as far as the 30 degree parallel. Within this narrow band spread out the survivor's of the biblical Flood.

The evidence for the Flood can be seen in the sea shells found embedded on the highest mountains, which can only come from oceans now raised by tectonic eruptions created by this globe shaking violently, upset by a change in its axis of spin. The earth once orbited the sun horizontally, with the poles pointing directly at the sun. After the asteroid strike it became tilted like a sail boat's ballast shifts in a storm. Over hundreds of years, the tilt wobbling gradually came to the almost rest of today's 23½° angle of rotation.

The reemerging human civilization was restarted by 8 people who built a boat. This event is reported in almost every culture but denied by the evolution religion. They began a new civilization now squeezed between the snowlines of a narrow band around the globe up to the 30th parallel. Traces of struggling, reemerging human cultures are found embedded in stone and leftover building structures from a new society. They had to relearn how to make and work metals like iron and bronze. Writing had to be reinvented due to the new languages imposed upon the human race to scatter them, although writing began with Adam at about 4004 BC.

Discovered just decades ago in the Italian Alps, melting glaciers exposed the well-preserved remains of a prehistoric man who had been frozen for thousands years. Known as Otzi, his clothing, food, medicine, and tools including a pure copper-ax, a flint knife, a bow and stone arrowheads teach us how people lived during the Bronze Age Europe about 5,000 years ago, according to most scholars. You might catch a show about him on TV. He is a good example of the relearning of civilization. His tools were more primitive than what has been found in earlier sites.

The most ancient civilizations were knowledgeable in genetics and knew how to smelt iron. A binary computer language of zeros and ones can be seen etched on three Chinese bronze plates³ dated 2,000 BC. I write about these matters that ancient humans were smarter than we moderns commonly give them credit.

There are so many facts willfully squashed by the controlling education establishment to keep you ignorant. For example, in Texas there are human foot prints embedded in dinosaur tracks – something so very contrary to evolution's fairytales! It must be suppressed because the facts cannot be questioned: the old soft muck hardened to stone pretty quickly. Many other facts could be discussed that disprove evolution as a foolish theory, and I encourage you to do some Internet research on it.

Records of climate changes show up in ancient scrolls written by skilled human beings. It requires reasoning with modern methods from the perspective of a dual rail methodology in order to discover the wealth of information available in ancient writings and monuments. Why is it only now that anyone has become aware of climate changes on earth? Evidence in geology and history are not lacking! Certainly, the process of transformation to a new climate has been gradual, but that is not the reason. Is it because we worry that gasoline is becoming too expensive? Because it means a change in our lifestyle? Fewer weekend boat trips?

I am amazed that the Bible was written by 40 authors over thousands of years, yet they are not in conflict with each other. This is a miracle in itself! Just look any scientific forum, and you will find much disagreement. This becomes especially true when discussions of climate change inspire a collection of wild secular opinions that do not agree with each other. It creates a confused picture, never mind trying to reach a real understanding of antiquity based on facts. How befuddled can you get controlled by fairytales.

That evidence of unanimous consent by 40 writers of the Bible alone points to a supernatural director guiding the writing. Their writings came from different ages, cultures and languages to form a masterpiece of literature that can be trusted as authentic and scientific. So when we align events written by ancient eye witnesses with the descriptions of their natural environment, we can assemble a climate change scenario not possible with conventional techniques.

For example, the Bible, 1,000 years before Christ in the Kings/Chronicles, reports that David was hiding 20,000 of his warriors in a forest in order to avoid fighting against 40,000 Philistines. Notice it mentioned "forest." It would take a real forest to hide 20,000 armed men. A thousand years later at the same location, Jesus had 7,000 people gather in lines of hundred on the deep grass to feed them. No forest is mentioned. Go visit Jerusalem in the 21st century, and you will not even find the deep grass. You will see a changed climate much drier than 2,000 years ago.

³ Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries, Chapter 6, Mystery of 2,000 BC of Chinese Feng Shui Compass Revealed.

Therefore, from 2287 BC we can, with the help of computers and trigonometry sine-cosine tables, very accurately calculate correlations of history and environmental conditions. Basically, one needs to apply a half circle representing our globe looking from an equatorial perspective toward the poles and track history as recorded by eyewitnesses and avoid the speculation of brainwashed scientists believing in fairytales, which will cloud one's perception and reasoning about climate change possibilities.

I feel sorry for Mr. Gore. His Bible ignorance contributes to his errors about global warming. My spin axis hypothesis teaches deeply, like the fact that most of an iceberg lies unseen underwater.

Predicting the Next Climate Changes

The newspaper astrologers have a fight among themselves discussing a new phenomenon which divides their camp in two parties. There looms a new 13th zodiac sign, which has recently appeared. The fight is real as 50% will adhere with the old zodiac system pitted against the upstart defending modern science. They need a referee like Mr. Gore is for climate changing champions. Political football is very profitable for some, but not necessary connected with the truth about climate change. It may get lucrative grant money from governments and corporations. But it will not lead to better understanding about what is really going on.

Don't judge truth by how much money follows an idea. Reason for yourself. Take a 360° theater in the round perspective on the issue by accepting all information available. Then you will have a better chance of truly understanding climate changes based on scientific evidence and not speculation spiced with evolution theories not possible. You be the Judge.

The spin axis of 23½° has never really been investigated thoroughly by the science establishment since Galileo. I cannot find any reference that our earth axis is not moving except in the newspaper columns written by astrologists, who are upset with each other over zodiac changes. This tells me that the earth axis is still not at rest.

I remembered that the Gregorian calendar must add one day every 400 years and wondered if one turn of the previous buried X-axis⁴ would turn every hundred years about 90°. Perhaps this has not been considered yet by scientists as a possible reason for climate changes. Perhaps someone does this research, but it is not popular with the mass media so he does not get any money to expand and promote his research.

Think of lying on a crowded beach. To get tanned evenly, you turn 90° when the redness shows to get the other side exposed for a full rounded suntan. Your tilt axis body position faces the sun as you lie on the beach blanket. That orientation has not changed as you are tanned with invisible ultra violet rays. Later that day, you come home tanned all-around. Nobody would suspect that you turned on the beach blanket to show a day's worth climate changes because no one was interested to measure it except some business that sells sunburn protection creams and lotions.

Think about it from a global perspective. If every hundred years the axis shifted 90°, you come back to the same 23½° fixed, which is four quarters of one day added in our calendar. That would be interpreted in climate changes from very cold to very dry glacier melting. I remember 1942 was the coldest winter in Germany. Hitler lost half the army by an early winter onset that perhaps changed the outcome of World War II. My theory matches Middle Ages historic events, too. The history of the Middle Ages mentions a food shortage of major proportions 400 years earlier at about AD 1550. The population was reduced to half in Germany due to an unusual mini-ice age that destroyed harvests across Europe resulting in the extreme shortage of food.

Using that model, I can postulate that climate warming will continue another 60 years (1942+60 = 102 years = 90° or AD 2067) modified with the Bible Forest-Grass-Dry exponential temperature scale calculated by trigonometry from Noah's Flood in 2288 BC. After 2067, we can expect to see glaciers forming again with another 400 year cycle. Or maybe the earth's axis has finally stopped making the pop astrologers happy, being once again united in their newspaper entertainment.

Check it out from a wider horizon perspective and be not befuddled by special interests in the government hiding under university approved sanctions to get another grand. I hope I pointed your thinking in another direction. I do not expect to get recognition or win a Nobel Prize as God will reward faithfulness in the Jod dimension. I hope you will get there too.

Winding Up this Short Book

Climate changes can be programmed from the Bible, and if you have added manmade causes, it would only accelerate the projecting exponential curve a little. If the magnitude of change were to exceed the permissible range, then God, who invented the system, will adjust it at the source of the problem.

Check out how key dates in Bible prophecy have been identified in the structure of ancient gold-bronze calendar-clocks⁵. This research confirms the Hebrew

⁴ Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries, Chapter 2.-3
Spin-axis from an Aztec Precession.

⁵ Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries Chapter 4.
Mystery Clocks and the X-y Spin-Axis Hypothesis, page 103.

Alphabet Number System⁶, which deciphered a Rosetta Stone ratio of 7:5 that can be used to organize and align the gears of Bible prophecy. It conforms to a Hebrew hand rule⁷ for simple math concept explanations to understand our world a little better.

Incidentally, that 7:5 ratio matches the ancient pyramid⁸ mathematics without we could not travel in space. This ratio echoes the "Seven Royal Numbers" and "Five Mathematical Equations"⁹ that are special cosmic laws in mathematics, including the pattern for all human history embedded in the Bible. If you do not read it, then you are an uninformed fool blindly accepting lies from Satan without knowing it.

Climate change from a Biblical perspective is more trustworthy. As a retired scientist, I have not found one scientific impossibility or wrong assumption in the Bible when reading it from a scientific mindset. The Bible even explains paradoxes that modern science has problems with.

I would rather use old-fashioned logic even though it is no longer fashionable with the education establishment. It makes more sense to me than acting like a dog chasing his tail, which is what it is like trying to explain the present phenomenon of global warming without its proper historical context.

You be the judge. Please think about climate change from the balanced perspective of two rails. Climate change will end on 17th September 2015. This is my conclusion from becoming educated in ancient clocks, HANS and comparing them with Bible prophecy. The next 52 km asteroid to strike earth is already being tracked through space by scientists. It has an 820-day orbit around the sun. When it hits the earth, all speculation about climate change will end.

I have added a magazine article for you to compare with my new theory:

"The Big Dry" Prolonged drought threatens Australia's people, wildlife, and economy, by Emily Sohn, Science News October 27, 2007, www.sciencenews.org.

The headline on page 266 of this magazine screams out how severe global warming will be come worldwide. This is only one example of hundreds I could report of climate changes affecting our world wide 21st civilization. But the scientists are very much divided over the cause. Most scientists are very educated in an evolution theory which became a religion and therefore cannot see the forest as too many trees obstruct defining scientific observation.

I will quote some important points made by the author who wrote what is confronting people in a survival stage. There is no longer time left for millions of people to discuss a cult evolution religion perspective, which distorts facts and invents fictitious but sacred theories about how the universe evolved. They are not helpful to solve the massive water shortage problems now noticed around the world. The only way to delineate fiction from truth is to study human history, which can be dated. That gives us reliable data points on the exponential climate curve starting from the last ice age reported in the Bible after Noah's time 2287 BC.

Maybe now it is time to become serious as economics will force us to evaluate any information available as millions of people and skyscrapers will be abandoned for lack of water. This has happened before. Historically, large towns of ancient civilization relocated leaving only ruins and temple buildings buried in sand. Do not think for a moment that modern technology is exempt from nature because a university priesthood says otherwise.

Australia is locked in a drought of drastic proportion. In recent years, rivers have reached record lows. Temperatures have spiked to records high. Cities are running out of water. Wildfires are burning. Ecosystems are suffering. And climate models are projecting more of the same –and worse–for many years to come. It seems for the Australians the Apocalypse already started.

As climate experts struggle to apportion blame between natural cycles and human activities, technology-minded researchers are looking for innovative ways to keep Australia's tap flowing. Their struggle may provide important lessons for the rest of a warming globe.

Australia's "Big Dry" with water precipitation declining 15-25 percent over the past decade says David Jones, head of climate analysis at the Australian Bureau of Meteorology's National Climate Centre in Melbourne. What is more to come, every 10 percent declining in precipitation leads to 30-40 percent decline of water that runs off land into streams and rivers. The runoff recession has greatly reduced the amount of water ending up in catchments, reservoirs, and dammed lakes. So the question on top for Australian economy is WHY SO DRY?

Disentangling the numerous factors contributing to Australia's extended drought is difficult for a continent that has experienced dry spells for a long time. Scientists educated in evolution myths postulate that Australia's climate alternated with wet times over millions years. Their theory goes that interglacial periods lasted tens of thousands to million year periods. Many notice that our earth is still relatively wet even though a lot of water is tied up in ice.¹⁰ My question is where does the ice come from? From hundreds of thousand years ago? I can answer with the data from

⁶ Apocalypse Prophesied, The Mystery of the Hebrew Language, page 445.

⁷ Apocalypse Prophesied, The basic Tools Used in My Research, page 31.

⁸ Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries, Chapter 11, Pyramids found around the World.

⁹ Apocalypse Prophesied, page 346.

¹⁰ Gregory Webb Geologist at the Queensland University of Technology in Brisbane

the ancient bronze-gold clocks exhibited in museums now deciphered.

Australia has a climate that is heavily driven by the warming of tropical waters in the eastern and central Pacific Oceans. Cooling of the same waters is called a La Niña which comes in cycles every 5-25 years. The big question is does global warming bear the blame for the recent surge in El Niños that scientists cannot explain?

Global warming is reality, and we cannot neglect Australia's water crisis. Scientists must look at all available information like human activity, land clearing, clear cutting the rainforest for agriculture¹¹. A Bible centered climate change story historically reported by eyewitnesses should not be thrown out by an atheistic priesthood controlling our universities. We should look at every source of information available to make a climate computer model we can trust, or we will just run out of time squabbling about speculations from a cult religion who is the top dog in the bunch.

The consequences of the evolutionary closed minded bias are twenty-one million people in Australia without sufficient water. Nearly 90% live on the coast in the 5 largest cities: Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane and Perth. The population has increased 25% since 1990 and is still growing. That will put stress on the economy. Compare the average water usage in America of 1,325 liters/day to 350 liters/day for Australia.

Patterns of animal extinction and disappearing wild life are speculated to range over 45,000 evolution years. There is a movement in some university quarters to correct those long ages as the evidence is now aligning with the appearance of the first humans on that continent. Read the Australian Journal of Earth Science 2006 to notice that the data shows a long gradual decline of both large and small animals. The article describes a scenario with no signs of hunting with a transition from lush forest to dry grasslands a conclusion very controversial for monorail scientist educated in an evolution cult religion.

But the Bible describes the same scenario over 4,300 years. This correct time span could help true scientists find ways to avert the same catastrophe in the future. Mr. Pitman cautioned, "You got to be very, very careful what you blame on global warming" or other human-caused phenomena which needs policymakers to make the right decision. I add, "...not based on a pet evolution theory not possible scientifically controlled by monorail universities not very balanced."

That would solve the problem headlined, "What now?" Scientists around the world must sort out possible causes of world water shortages. Australia's model could lead in fixing the problem by asking Israel to help in desalinization projects as the price of water will surely go through the roof. Australians are rising to the challenge of living with less water but must continue to grapple with an environment that they don't recognize anymore, "We really will run out of water if it doesn't start raining," Webb says. "It's spooky."

A dual perspective within a 360° theater in the round perspective should include the history of the Bible. It should highlight our biases gone the wrong way. You be the judge or be spooked out with an empty glass of water. That would settle climate warming postulated from the fairytale perspective so popular today.

Evolution is so wacky and shaky that it requires massive enforcement on the general populations by teams of lawyers and police on school grounds all over America. My hope is that they will not burn my Babushka books. America is throwing out the Bible and other Christian books from school libraries similar what Hitler did in Germany.

I ask you to look into the Bible like a mirror. I encourage you to become wise as described in Daniel 12:10. Daniel prophesied that there would be some wise people in the final days of our civilization, which has otherwise gone totally corrupt and atheistic. The information is here presented in my Babushka books. They give you the answers to the big questions of Where, Who, What, When and Why. I hope that you will become as pleasantly surprised in your discovery as I was during 2007.

Remember those pictures taken from the Moon of our earth set in space? Pretty small in the midst of a vastness beyond human comprehension.

That alone should shock us puny mortals into enough humility to bow before an eternal Creator God – especially One who has been so incredibly patient and loving towards us. His hand is yet open to offer each who would accept it, the incredibly generous gift of Eternal Life. You can change from the lowly caterpillar and put on some gorgeous butterfly wings – one of my favorite analogies used several places in my books. I encourage you to accept His offer and do your best to apply His Word in your everyday life.

¹¹ Climatologist McGowan presents a climate model in Geophysical Research letters.